What does my new profile picture tell you?

Saturday, April 05, 2014

8 years since my last half marathon and I'm still smiling.
Mile 12 and I want to finish happy.
I carry my own water (and cough drops, darn allergies)
25 years after running my first step, I'm running because I can.
As you can see from my last profile photo,

I always race in red and black.
That's so DH can find me.
He once took a picture of the wrong woman finishing a 5K.

LOVE it! That's hilarious about your husband!

It's great you make it easy on him now by dressing in the same colors, although you'd think he'd recognize his WIFE and not the outfit!!!!

Glad he can find you now LOL! I look forward to the day when I can run again, or a least walk fast ha ha. One day it will come. In the meantime I have you and other friends to inspire me!

Good job and looking great. It's a good idea to carry ones own water, for me it's as much about ecology as being prepared. Allergies stink, and cough drops are a necessity. Hope you keep running my friend.
Glad your hubby found you the picture is great.

I love both of your smiles in the pictures. You look thin and fit in both of them! Plus your new shoes are cute.

Keep up doing what you love and what keeps you healthy! I am glad your husband finds you in black and red!

What does it tell ME? I was in the same race event. It tells me that you're in my age range, are half my size, ran more than twice as far and ran much faster than I did. It also tells me that I can look like that next year if I keep at it. Keep at it SLOWLY but surely. You look great!! --and lols on the hubs!! I was in charge of taking pics of my daughter and her two friends in a triathlon relay - it can be challenging I got a couple wrong people pics.

Inspirational as always!

My husband has only come to one race I have done. After I finished, I couldn't find him. I called his cell and he said he was still at the finish line, watching for me to film me coming across the finish line. He exclaimed "everybody looks the same!"

Oh, I had to laugh at the final paragraph! My kid sister tried to find me at the Lincoln HM last year, and did NOT spot me, even though I have to have run by her watching post. Why? Because I told her the day before what I'd be wearing but the day was COLD, and I covered it up with a jacket, so she didn't recognize me!

Spark on, my friend! You always get my engines started (and I, too, am still smiling)!
