The Junk Food King and I

Thursday, September 25, 2014

Like other sparkers I often write about my efforts to encourage DH to adopt a healthier lifestyle.

Looking through my blogs I noticed that I never included his picture.
So here we are.

When the photographer had us pose like this, I thought it was silly. Now I like it.
We've been together a long time. Here's our first date in June 1963.

My hair was dark and he had hair.

We met at a party the night before.
I was invited at the last minute, but told to say I was 18.
I was almost 16.

51 years later he still calls me “the kid”

Edit:

DH is only 2 1/2 years older than me, but back then:
he was in college and I was in high school
he could drink legally and I couldn't he could drive and I couldn't

So it seemed like a lot.

You guys are super cute together. LOVE the old picture, and ADORE the recent one! Yes photographers sometimes make us take silly poses but generally they know what they're doing ;P

That "first date" picture looks like you've been together for forever! Either that or you both knew the other person was "the one!" (Had I been your mom, I would have had a serious talk with you, young lady, LOL!)

Lovely photos. The younger one looks like you had been dating a long, long time. I had a very similar experience when I was dating a 22-year old teacher and I was still in high school at the time, and just barely seventeen. Five years is not a long time, but I would have had to get through high school, through college to catch up to his life experiences.

Love the tongue-in-cheek title of the blog, too. Thanks for posting.

Great pictures - and what a good looking couple!

I need to clean out my pantry too - it was pretty embarrassing to discover that I had stuff in there with expiration dates in 2009!

You two look so good together now and back then both! 2 1/2 years can seem like a lot at certain times of our lives. Glad you still have each other after all those years. Not totally a rarity but not as common as it used to be. I love to see couples make it for the long haul and still be happy with each other!

Looking back is so much fun. Wonderful that you are still together and both look so happy. I remember those days when we weren't quite old enough but thought we were. The pictures are great.

The pictures are beautiful!

So he robbed the cradle did he? LOL! How much older is he than you?

That was the way it was with my parents. There was about 8 1/2 years difference between the two of them and they were married until death did them apart. It was an awesome marriage.
