Missing Out on Experiences for Fear of Ridicule?

Tuesday, January 19, 2021

"Dance like no one is watching?" If they are watching, you might look like this. So what!

I have a memorable photo of my rear end while clutching the hand of my partner, a young Italian guy.

This was taken 4 years ago at our last "Language and Culture" course. Joe and I spent the summer in Bratislava and the language was Slovak. Joe took the photo. He is NOT dancing.

Our current course "Lithuanian Language and Culture" is online. Still, we had the opportunity to "participate" in a folkdance workshop

There we were on the screen in typical ZOOM fashion all in our little windows. We learned the history and significance of the traditional dances. We saw several videos of performances.

Then it was our turn. We were invited to join along with 23 of our classmates from 4 continents. I did. Joe did not. No surprise there.

Now the windows contained images of people clapping, kicking, spinning around and bumping rear ends with an imaginary partner.

I wish I had a photo of that, but my official photographer didn't get a screen shot.

It's OK. When we are finally allowed to travel, we will attend the course in Lithuania in person just as we did in Slovakia twice and I will get up and dance again.

I first saw the original "dance" quote as the tag line of sparker Phebess, someone whose approach to life I have long admired.

The original source is subject to dispute. However, the sentiment is perfect for me.

Dance like no one is watching,

Love like you'll never be hurt

Sing like no one is listening

Live like it's heaven on earth.

Wonderful! We took a river cruise in October 2019 on the Danube and loved seeing these countries. Got to watch many of the dancers although we weren't invited to participate.

Thanks for sharing and the reminder to live! and have fun!

Traditional group folk dances are both fun to do and fun to watch. I admire your willingness to get in there and try.

Oh, what fun! I love to dance!

I had not noticed your rear in the photo until you mentioned it...I was drawn into the dancing and focus was on young man coming behind you, girl in the left back with blue dress, and the woman in the green floral printed long skirt. Never would have recognized your back in this virtual world. It just didn't draw my attention. I simply saw fun!

Too many times we are overly concerned with the reaction to others- more often than not, when we are younger. One of the best things about aging is the strength to not give our power to others!

Glad you danced and enjoyed yourself. Pooh on anyone else. I have polka shows on tv every week, dance to them, and do clog dancing to bluegrass music. Ask Alexa for 1950's and 1960's music, dance in the kitchen. Pooh on anyone who does not like to see it. One good thing about aging!

I have always loved square dancing, folk dancing, etc., although I haven't done any in years. But I would hope no one would ever get a shot of me doing it, because I am sure I would be embarrassed by it. But what I don't see, I can't be embarrassed by.

Yes Dance as best you can. Let the music take all the stress, fears, and anxiety away!

I enjoy watching the dances from so many other countries. The dancing they do in costumes and groups is beautiful.

Learning another language is interesting and many times helpful.

Dancing is exercise too!

Your pictures remind me of some of our Azamara Club Cruises. My husband took movies of me dancing, usually my back side. I had so much fun, I didn't care that he was taking the movies. When learning a Greek dance, I didn't think about my oversized slip on shoes until I tripped. Luckily there was a place to sit. In the future, when I suspected I would be dancing, I kicked off the shoes before my hand was grabbed.

Thanks for 'refreshing my memory' about some fun travel times.

It looks like a lot of fun. As we all age, we don't care if people are watching. We are showing everyone that you are never too old to have fun.
